Glamour boy

Get your costume on, you got 'em lined up, waitin' for you

Glamour boy

You got 'em standin' in the aisles so don't hang 'em up

For twenty-five thousand dollars you can look like a woman tonight

For twenty-five thousand dollars I think it'll work out right

I think it'll work out, uh-huh

I think it'll work out, oh, you never know how to write it

Think it'll work out

Glamour boy

You been tops for a while with a million-dollar smile

Glamour boy

You got rave reviews and you're front-page news

For thirty-seven thousand dollars you can look like your sister tonight

For thirty-seven thousand dollars I think it'll work out

I think it'll work out, oh, you never know how you'll write
it

Think it'll work out

So spin with the archer now

And laugh in his face as he cocks his bow

Steal from his mistress

As she's makin' love to your family

And be aware that there's not many there

Who want to take time to sing and play an honest song
for the people

no more

C'mon, take time to sing and play an honest song for the people

tonight

Don't you wanna take time to sing and play an honest song for

the people tonight

{spoken}

"Ladies and gentlemen, a warm Space Age welcome, if you will, for the most phenominal group of the century... Ricky and The Balloons!!"

Glamour boy

You really had your fill and it's all downhill

Glamour boy

You got tales to tell when you see your old friends

For forty-nine thousand dollars you can look like a

For forty-nine thousand dollars I think it'll work out right

Think it'll work out

As she's makin' love to your family

And be aware that there's not many there

song for

the people no more

Don't you wanna try and take time to sing and play an honest song

for the people tonight

You can't fool 'em

Take time to sing and play an honest song for the people tonight

They're gettin' smarter

Take time to sing and play an honest song for the

honest song

C'mon and take time to sing and play an honest song

Mmm, take time to sing and play an honest song for
