Ignorance is bliss and so commonly linked to our memories
When hope becomes just a word that has no meaning

When there's nothing left to hope for History has a tendency of repeating

I've got the confidence to do this but something is holding me back

So I'll say my prayers
Hold my breathe
Cross my heart
Set my mind free

Feelings keep building never release me
From these hollow walls that are built and fall around

When life becomes just a thing that ends before it begins
And our children slit their wrists beneath our parkways

I wont forget who I am because this is where I find compassion
I wont forget who I am and every day I keep on wishing
