When I was young, living wild and free
Met a pretty girl on New Years Eve
Took her hand and said marry me
Here and now

One year later on a hospital bed
I'm right beside her and shes holding my hand
Leaning over her I kiss my new born baby girl
And she said

Daddy heres your girl
Shes got your eyes and your thick brown curls
Little angel for a cruel world
And I'll never let her go

Six years old on training wheels
Leather fringe hanging from pink steel
Her hair in pigtails
And a new found fear of the road

Holding tight to the bicycle seat
One little push and shes flying free
The only person more afraid than her was me
And she said

Daddy don't let go
I'm losing balance and I scared to fall
I said, I'm right beside you through anything at all
And I'll never let you go

College graduate at 22
Fire in her eyes and a carefree attitude
Couldnt hand her a pair of shoes
She couldn't fill

Dedicated to a life-long plan
Never knowing that she'd meet a young man
Pretty soon he'd ask me for her hand
She'd look at me and say

Daddy let me go

He's the man that I've been searching for
He's right beside her through the worst of storms
And I'm never letting go

She's Daddy's girl
All grown up in a brand new world
Got a man to call her own now
And I can finally let her go
