It's one hundred and nine degrees in this crowded room

No room to breathe with walls as cold as a gallery

This is no place for me

Such hard faces in smoke

The smell lingers in my clothes

It's a bad night to be alone

But that's the way it goes

And I think of you whenever life gets me down

I think of you whenever you're not around

And you rest your bones

Somewhere far from my own

Yeah, but you still pull me home

I thought I had it figured out in a brand new life

With a great big house

And green initials on the towels

I should be happy now

Well, you got yourself a family

And you planted roots down by the sea

I saw you once on the street

You didn't notice me

But I think of you whenever life gets me down

I think of you whenever you're not around

You rest your bones

Somewhere far from my own

Yeah, but you still pull me home

Just to put your mind at ease

You don't owe me anything

You paid me well in memories

And I think of you whenever life gets me down

I think of you whenever you're not around

And you rest your bones

Somewhere far from my own

Yeah, but you still pull me home

You still pull me home

You still pull me home
