I pull into the drive at half past two
At the house where my heart longs to be.
Through the window there's a warm fire glowing,
And the sidewalk is lit up just for me.

She leaves the light on and it burns all night long,
Ready and awaiting, right there to guide me home,
It leads me down the hallway to the bedroom where she lays,
And I'm contempt to be her man at the end of every day!
She leaves the light on.

I've never been a man who's afraid Of the darkness, of being on my own,
But I love the way she loves To light up the night and lets me know I'll never be alone!

She leaves the light on and it burns all night long,
Ready and awaiting, right there to guide me home,
It leads me down the hallway to the bedroom where
she lays,
And I'm contempt to be her man at the end of every day!
She leaves the light on.

Ooh, she leaves the light on and it burns all night long,
Ready and awaiting, right there to guide me home.
