For those that are able
To go underground
Missiles disenable
They hit faster then sound

They're coming and you have no choice
The helpless with one human voice
You will categorically say
This underdog will have his day

One more dead is one more
Then it ought to be, a travesty oh, oh
One more missed will be kissed
To eternity or purgatory oh, oh

After the war
After the war

Red button he's pressing
But he knows not why
He's programming orders
War lights up the sky

He's on the hot line tonight
His mind is high as a kite
His fingers decide wrong or right
This man has it all in his sights

Used as tools to believe in autonomy
Minorities are no more
Men are fools, one last cry to humanity
No sanity anymore

After the war
After the war
After the war

On my arm a tattoo for my sons to be
That numbers you and me
There's a scar on my face
That is photographed for all to see oh, oh

After the war
After the war
