There is no comeback from the big divide
Maybe there's a future to be found
Waiting on the other side

If it's illusion, then what is real?
In life's confusion just take what you can
And fight it till you reach the goal

And the higher you climb
You can fall but never look down
And the faster you run
It's a crawl to the end of the line

It seems all directions lead to one place
There are no signposts guiding me
It takes a long time to see

And the higher you climb
You can fall but you never look down
And the faster you run
It's a crawl to the end of the line

The age of reason has come and gone
The changing seasons move on and on
Until you reach the goal

And the higher you climb
You can fall but you never look down
And the faster you run
Well, it's a crawl to the end of the line

And the higher you climb
You can fall
And the faster you run
It's a crawl to the end of the line

And the higher you climb
Don't you fall down on me
And the faster you run

And the higher you climb
And the faster you run
