“Don’t let go,” said the leaf to the tree,
“I don’t know myself without you here with me.”

But as she let me go, I knew
Our shining season now was through

Better things are ahead than any we leave behind
Let the sun set so a new one will rise
But always remember our time

Entropy and time will get their way
Life and all its treasures will rust and decay

All the things that now are new
Will surely some day be old too

Better things are ahead than any we leave behind
Let the sun set so a new one will rise
But always remember our time

And the wind blows on
And the wind blow on
And the wind blows on

And the wind blows on
And the wind blow on
And the wind blows on

Better things are ahead than any we leave behind
Let the sun set so a new one will rise
But always remember our time
