Say you're sorry and act like you care, but I don't give a damn anymore 'cause you wear your heart on your sleeve, and those boys on your waist, but it all just comes down to the smile on your face, yeah.

Haylie, you used to be in style. You had me going for a while, wrapped up in everything you do.

So hey, hey, you've got nothing to lose now. So take, take all the time that you choose, love. And shake, shake off every move, whether they fake it or not, we all know you've got something to prove.

So take back everything you ever said that made me believe you were true, when I'd do anything for you.

So drink down everything, I won't stick around to see what you can't ever be for me.
