He takes a drag and rolls his window down
And then they both laugh loud at something she just said.

He's in need of inspiration he's starved for her attention

And she can't help but look good.

Her eyes are holding back tears

Cause it's been like this for two whole years

Bitting her lip and rolling her eyes

He can't stand it but he acts surprised

And they're doing nothing but it feels like something
Even though they're doing nothing tonight.

She can't stand you, you don't know why

But it kills you deep inside

He's yearning, she is learning now

How it feels to be alive

(bitting her lip, and rolling her eyes

He can't stand it, but he still acts surprised.)

He wanted more than she could give

Even gave up and then she did.

But does he really want to stop

I mean, did he really think this through.

She can't stand you, you don't know why

But it kills you deep inside

He's yearning, she is learning now

How it feels to be alive

Open your eyes and listen to him

He is singing things to make you

Think about him, dream about him

He wants you but he can't have you.

She can't stand you, you don't know why

But it kills you deep inside

He's yearning, she is learning now

How it feels to be alive

He's misleading you, remember how it takes him
A few 'I'm sorry's and late night visits
To show you how he really feels
