She says I can feel the light,
Every word that's spoken feels right,
I'm quiet as I work on the fire,
And the moonlight dances on the water,
She asks me to play her a love song,
She get that look in her eye when I say this is all wrong.

I'm not looking for any trouble from you,
I'm just searching for your point of view,
I'm out walking on a starry, sorry night.

I take a walk to nowhere,
Thoughts are racing through my mind, destination's undeclared,
There are times when I feel I can do no wrong,
But lately I feel I'm saying sorry all day long.

I'm not looking for any trouble from you,
I'm just searching for your point of view,
I'm out walking on a starry, sorry night.

I'm skipping stones from the harbor,
I'm skipping through the thoughts in my head,
The Northern stars have never been brighter,
It seems to me I shouldn't try to fight her.

I'm not looking for any trouble from you,
I'm just searching for your point of view,
I'm out walking on a starry, sorry night,
Every thing's all right.
