Too much, too little for a conversation
Too much, too little for me
To change my ways
I'm giving up given this situation
I'm giving up all the things that I can't change

When all my dreams
Shatter in a million things
Though I did everything I could do
Even if we die tonight
It'll do me good to know we tried
Even though some dreams never come true
Some times I'm living in desperation
Some times I can't believe the things I say
I need some beautiful inspiration
I need somebody to tell me it's okay

When all my dreams
Shatter in a million things
Though I did everything I could do
Even if we die tonight
It'll do me good to know we tried
Even though some dreams never come true

We both know that there's a reason
No one needs to know what's wrong this time
I'm just glad that we're still breathing
Cos a life of regret makes it harder to forget

When all our dreams
Shatter in a million things
Though I did everything I could do
Even if we die tonight
It'll do me good to know we tried
Even though some dreams never come true
