You don't have to let it be like yesterday
Look outside yourself, you just might dream You'll find a blue sky, a coffee cup and Joni in Let it drown out the world that might've been Let it begin

You don't know where it's all coming from
The little things that set you out
It's the little things always coming back around

Taking a brand new morning back where the moon left me Think about getting started when you're stuck on the same thing
And you don't know why or what is to blame
But you're on your way
To being as brokenhearted today

Radios and yellow lights
One quick stall and it might just be enough for giving up
It's hard to keep the space between the memories
All it takes is a melody to give in
To your heart again

Taking a brand new morning back where the moon left
me
Think about getting started when you're stuck on the same thing
And you don't know why or what is to blame
But you're on your way
To being as brokenhearted today

You don't know where it's all coming from
The little things that get you down
It's the little things always coming back around

me
Think about getting started when you're stuck on the
same thing

And you don't know why or what is to blame
But you're on your way
To being as brokenhearted today

Back where the moon left me
Think about getting started when you're stuck on the same things
And you don't know why or what is to blame
But you're on your way
