Thank you for the wake up call I never asked for So tell me how it feels
To be just another gamble

We set sail to the east to avoid a west of lost regret We start a fire just to prove we haven't finished yet Cause everything I own just turns to stone when I'm with you Because you took what's left and you left what's true
True

I tried so hard to believe in everything you're singing out of key
But that still means nothing to me
'Cause I know so many deserving of what you're ripping off
There's nothing that I'd rather not be than someone so far away from me

I know we'll never work this out but here's the best part I don't know how it feels to be just another victim
We set fire to the hills burning everything we know we're not Tattooed with lyrics as a memory of what we've got You're dressed up as something that stands for nothing (Your world in flames and you lit the fuse)
But I guess we all mean nothing 'til we're talked about

I tried so hard to believe in everything you're singing
out of key
But that still means nothing to me
'Cause I know so many deserving of what you're
ripping off
There's nothing that I'd rather not be than someone so
far away from me

Your eyes shine so bright, this hope stands to fall These worlds that I might break once and for all, so here we go

Hold your breath cause you'll be finished by the time you could run out of it Lose the world and hold the rest, we'll build another in a heart beat (X2)

I tried so hard to believe in everything you're singing
out of key
But that still means nothing to me
'Cause I know so many deserving of what you're
ripping off
There's nothing that I'd rather not be than someone so
far away from me

This is who we are We'll never let this go We'll die a hundred times
To prove that truth dies old When placed in the right hearts When will they finally see That something that we're not Is who we'll never be?
