I'll lay down in the rain, I'll lay down in the rain.
Let the mud and the water flow through my veins,
I'll lay down in the rain.

I'll lay down in the rain, I'll lay down in the rain.
Let the mud and the water flow through my veins,
I'll lay down in the rain.

I'll lay down in the rain, I'll lay down in the rain.
Let the mud and the water flow through my veins,
I'll lay down in the rain.

Nothin' in this world but pleasure for pain,
A nickel costs a dime and an arm costs a leg.
Everything's changing but it all stays the same,
That's why I seek shelter in the wind and the rain.

I'll lay down in the rain, I'll lay down in the rain.
Let the mud and the water flow through my veins,
I'll lay down in the rain.

I never set out to dirty my hands,
Life has made it hard to keep them clean.
The kindest soul can raise the black flag,
The strongest can fall to their knees.

But I won't be held under by no preachin' man,
That's far too cold for me.
A bar of soap and my own two hands
Is all I'll need to get clean.

I'll lay down in the rain, I'll lay down in the rain.
Let the mud and the water flow through my veins,
I'll lay down in the rain.

With such great faith in answers unknown,
Are some so willing to teach.
But all the believers with their bibles in their hands,
Just remind me why I don't believe.

It seems we look so far a search so long,

For whatâ€™s always been in our reach.
We dig so deep and turn every stone,
Just to find whatâ€™s under our feet.

Iâ€™ll lay down in the rain, Iâ€™ll lay down in the rain.
Let the mud and the water flow through my veins,
Iâ€™ll lay down in the rain.

Iâ€™ll lay down in the rain, Iâ€™ll lay down in the rain.
Let the mud and the water flow through my veins,
Iâ€™ll lay down in the rain.
