You're telling me the future plans

Where candy-colored pictures fill your hands

And for a minute I am with you there

And I'm picking out some pretty dress to wear

But I'll never believe you now

I never believed you then

Shame

I know a place where summers shine

And every fairy tale comes real before my eyes

And the stories that you always tell

Well, they never held together to well

And I'll never believe you now

I never believed you then

And I'll never believe you now

Could you look at you now

And what it's doing to me

Broken pieces of what we used to be

But I'll never believe you now

I never believed you then

Shame

Could you look at you now

And what it's doing to me

Broken pieces of what we used to be
