You take the long way home, girl
What are you avoiding
There's nothing to be wary of Everyone here loves you
On your way you will see flowers on the sidewalk
Let their scent remind you that you have what you want

Don't forget what it meant to you
You have something that you don't want to lose

Roses are red, not black
You're just feeling sorry for yourself
You want the old days back
Don't you know we're living them right now
You just won't see it until two more years have passed
And you look back on today and all that you've taken for granted

Don't forget what it means to you
You have something worth holding on to

In the end all these things
You must leave behind
As you move through this time
You'll find

You don't want to forget what it meant to you
You have something that you don't want to lose
Don't forget what it means to you
You have something worth holding on to
