Adam Richman
"Everything That You Need"

I'm not grown up
I'm still writing songs
And I'm dealing with you still every day
It's a myth to say
I've become strong
My strength is always kissed away
The thought of our past lingers through our lives
Too haunted by mountains or endless skies
Every star stands out like the scars we bare to survive
I swear I shouldn't say it
But fine now
Admitting it always comes back to you
Getting over where we left off wouldn't do
I'd spend these years wondering
Who I'm meant to be
It's not to say that you change me
But I guess that that's a given
If you were around, all things forgiven
I'd give you everything that you need
Uncertainty is nothing next
To romantic tendencies and fallacies
And faking myself out once again
Could make real sense of the shit we've seen
I'm pretty damn scared if you came around
We might have to revisit the sights and sounds
Of a summer spent pissing away the time we still haven't found
I swear I shouldn't say it
But fine now
Admitting it always comes back to you
Getting over where we left off wouldn't do
I'd spend these years wondering
Who I'm meant to be
That's not to say that you change me
But I guess that that's a given
If you were around, all things forgiven

I'd give you everything that you need
Give you everything that you need
I'm not grown up
I'm still writing songs
Like I'm dealing with you still every day

It's a myth to say
I've become strong
My strength is always kissed away
I'm pretty damn scared if you came around
We might have to revisit the sights and sounds
Of a summer spent pissing away the time we still
haven't found
I swear I shouldn't say it
But fine now
Admitting it always comes back to you
Getting over where we left off wouldn't do
I'd spend these years wondering
Who I'm meant to be
That's not to say that you change me
But I guess that that's a given
If you were around, all things forgiven
I'd give you everything that you need
Give you everything that you need
Well fine now
Admitting it always comes back to you
And getting over where we left off wouldn't do
I'd spend these years wondering
Who I'm meant to be
That's not to say that you change me
But I guess that that's a given
If you were around, all things forgiven
I'd give you everything that you need
Give you everything that you need
I'd give you everything that you need
Give you everything that you need