Show Him Your Heart

Watch him light up your footpath, bright leave this old life behind you

You're mind is so clouded, but you can see it so clear

While in this state, lift your hands to him

Surrender your heart so he can see right in

These chains that hold you, let them go

Allow the river to flow in this place

Now as it's filling up let the arrows get washed away

Don't you realise your looking in the wrong place's

It burns so much, to see you fall apart

And now it's time to show your heart and receive your salvation

Your coming home

I will be, forever by your side

I have seen, your lovingness

Is this feeling something to hold on to, on to

Just slip away from everything that enslaves you

You wont find freedom, there

Cry you're eye's out, leave this old life behind you.
