Kneeling at the altar
Digging in the graves
Searching through the wreckage
And the debris of my sins
For a single vow to save me...
There's a battle raging in the
Silence of the night
Is this blood upon my skin?
I lie unwrapped and naked
'neath the weeping tree of life
No comfort left within me...

From a point of faith within my head
I believe in all the choices I have made
From a point of love within my heart
I forgive myself for all of my mistakes
From a point of faith...
From a point of love...

Do we seek salvation
In somebody else?
I prayed to a tin god in
The temple of the sun
And simply lost myself there
Now in the lands I live in
My life has come undone...
And I am left alone as one...
But there's a peace in silence
That leaves me overcome
A quiet voice within me...

From a point of trust within my eyes
I can see that I must look beyond the pain
From a point of grace within my soul

I release myself from taking all the blame
From a point of trust...
From a point of grace...

Let me walk in fields of my own goodness...
Let me lie no more with my regrets...

From a point of faith within my head
I believe in all the choices I have made
From a point of love within my heart
I forgive myself for all of my mistakes
From a point of truth within my eyes
I can see that I must look beyond the pain
From a point of grace within my soul
I release myself from taking all the blame
From a point of trust within my mouth
I will speak all of the words I want to say
From a point of pride within my arms
I will embrace myself and I won't be afraid

From a point of faith, from a point of love
From a point of trust and from a point of grace

And I'll forgive myself
And I won't love myself
And I will trust myself
And I'll have faith...
And I'll have my faith...
