Where were you? say you were gone? well, ask me and i'll swear you were there all along. another place? another state? at any rate, i can't relate. there's no two ways, you're a disgrace. drown down your fear, suffocate every spark of clarity. your weakness: sickens me, saddens me, strengthens me. there's no way to free responsibility. who's to blame? who's in the wrong? the truth from which you hide - it was you all along. you were there, you didn't care, and your heart and mind were self impaired. now, all that's left is our despair.
