Last night I had a satisfying dream, but now my head is empty
I fell and shattered inside
I asked for assistance, but my yell just came back empty
Someone in this place should come to keep me company

I'm in a labyrinth of shadows and lights, the secret exit is empty enough as it is
Until that time my shining dreams will stay concealed
And I assure myself that it will be okay and good
Tomorrow I will slowly face my fears
Only to see that I have already destroyed them

I can get lost in anything but soon my fingertips will find the crevice
However, I'll stay calm and die in a flood
Now, in this place, my heart opens to the small flames
This place vanished and I awaken, shaking and crying

I'm in a labyrinth of shadows and lights, and disastrous flaming memories
I'm held tightly, though leaving was a mistake
"Surely, it's okay" I mutter to them, and I see
An eternal smiling face
Tomorrow I will face my reality

I'm in a labyrinth of shadows and lights, the secret exit is empty enough as it is
Until that time my shining dreams will stay concealed
And I assure myself that it will be okay and good
Tomorrow I will slowly face my fears
Only to see that I have already destroyed them

I'm in a labyrinth of shadows and lights, and I know that it's okay
Because tomorrow's nightmares have already been destroyed
