The sun blocked out those angry eyes
Just another failed attempt, never to recognize
The youth she kept in all her life
The youth, she kept it all inside

And all her dreams are lies
Too much like everyone else
Shatter these pieces here and now
And, her friends are just wolves on the prowl

That sun it dried her tears away
Looking up to heaven, she needs answers today
They keep her paralyzed
Oh, despite their own demise

And all her prayers are lies
Too much like everyone else
Shatter these pieces here and now
Those two are just wolves on the prowl

And there she goes
She's at the end
Saying, saying
Screaming these useless words again.
"We'll do it right, this time" she said.

And, still her dreams were lies
Not much like everyone else
Those pieces shattered on the ground
Her and those new scars are on the prowl
