He's got a really bad sense of time
He only listens when she's about to break down and say
But she's got a lot to learn about herself
She's always blaming her sorrow on someone else
He's not a really good person from the start
He's always making it a habit of breaking her heart
But she's gonna have to take half the blame
She's always taking his shit
But I swear it's gonna change
Just walk away like you never cared
Don't even look at him if you're still scared

And you don't even have to give him a reason why
But all the things that you never said
They're gonna stay with you until you're dead
So take advantage of the way he made you feel
It's only a matter of time
You're gonna find your peace of mind
And maybe settle down in a one bedroom apartment
And all the evil things he might say
Will come back to him one day
When he least expects it
And then you'll be a million miles away
Miles away
Away
