It's not your fault
You didn't see it coming
90 miles an hour
Gone so fast and now you're left with nothing at all

It's not your fault
I give up every part of you that they could spare
Mixed between the petrol
And the one lie
And it's code

They're still in your eyes
And now that you're gone to some place else I can't save you
Because the brightest lights are closing in on us

But their still your eyes
And now that you're gone to some place else I can't
save you
So I'm giving every part of you away

It's not your fault
Something
You made up to your bedroom every night
Leaves us chasing memories and trying to understand
We can't wait

But they're still eyes
And now that you're gone to some place I can't save you
Because the brightest lights are closing in on us

But they're still your eyes
And now that you're gone to some place else I can't
save you
So I'm giving every part of you away

I'm not gone
What the hell just happened here
I'm not gone
What the hell just happened
