

Alan Jackson

"Dixi Highway"

Visit "Dixi Highway" on MotoLyrics.com

i was born on the dixi highway, red play and georgy
pines
i was raised on the dixi highway, no sweeter place you'll ever find.

with frame house and grandma driveway with the trees and old front porch just outside the city limits, on the highway 34.

i was born on the dixi highway, red play and georgy
pines
i was raised on the dixi highway, no sweeter place
you'll ever find.

and having tobacco rolling on the roadside rolled it up and we smoked it down. don't feel much, but it makes you feel big when you're ten years old in a tiny town.

i was born on the dixi highway, red play and georgy
pines
i was raised on the dixi highway, no sweeter place
you'll ever find.

have a chicken meal right in the backyard close line running east to west water bane to make a garden, six days and a sun to rest.

i was born on the dixi highway, red play and georgy
pines
i was raised on the dixi highway, no sweeter place
you'll ever find.

summertime, hot and hazy, bare feet and a water hose melon and lime on a country table lighting the buds when the sun goes down.

i was born on the dixi highway, red play and georgy
pines
i was raised on the dixi highway, no sweeter place

you'll ever find.

and the holy ghost on a sunday morning, gospel songs and a bible read sunday lunch at momma's table, praying for lord and break the bread.

i was born on the dixi highway, red play and georgy
pines
i was raised on the dixi highway, no sweeter place
you'll ever find.

i screamed in porch right at the backdoor, washing machine and an old, old, stove momma's singing in the kitchen, rolling homemade biscuit dough.

i was born on the dixi highway, red play and georgy
pines
i was raised on the dixi highway, no sweeter place
you'll ever find.

when i'm old and heaven's calling and they come to care me away just lay me down, down in soft land here where me and jordan play.

i was born on the dixi highway, red play and georgy
pines
i was raised on the dixi highway, no sweeter place
you'll ever find.

Visit Alan Jackson page on MotoLyrics.com, to get more lyrics and videos.