"Where No Light Can Reach"

Fascinated by a place with no name where no life emerges from It's scorched ground where no wind whispers by and no light uncovers the unique forms forms from deep lands of perdition rivers of red cross as silent as nothingness it's like they were made of blood of a million deaths the ghouls pass only to rest forever

There the torment might be infinite but the will to reach there is impossible there's no way to evade the creatures made by the so dense and black day that prevails everything reached by this force is swallowed nothing can stop the morbidity of it's wings something evil and powerful lives there where the light stops at density

Take me from light, take me beyond force of darkness and cold winter of north, winter of south moon of the black circle Curse of the souls, evoking the night unholy spirit of light bringer of wisdom and pleasures of times I ask you all your might

The only land, the only path to discover life Ritual under a cover of black to get where no light can reach
