If you can save me now lets go some place safe and sound
I'll try not to wake you down but I don't know if I can wait around
If you can save me now lets go some place safe and sound...
It happened fast like a camera flash
The accident then the aftermath
Not even sure what caused the crash
If I had the strenght I would probably laugh I'm so relaxed, warm like blood, laying on my back on soft dry mud
There's no point in even try to get up
I got my eyes glued to the blue sky above
And it's been a beautiful summer
It reminds me of when I was younger
I used to count down to the sound of thunder
I smell fresh cut grass mixed with the burned rubber
And I don't even take a glance to know
Cause I can hear the traffic as it passes slow
They're on the other side of the window
Checking out the damage, looking at the show
I can hear the sirens get near Momma used to tell us to plug our ears
It get so loud and clear until every other noise dissapears
Right now I try to block it out by imagining that sounds that come out your mouth I saw two birds fly south and I though about the day we bought that house
Memories seems so real, just like everything that I feel
I try to post on o five neals
I wanna cry, keep the tears consield
I hear voices, footsteps, a cops radio off to the left The noise made me reflect, somewhere along the way I must have caught my breath Drifted, dreaming...
And then I heard somebody screaming
But I don't even want to know the reason
So I kept my focus on the view I'm seeing Started thinking about the voice that's gone

Everybody from the past to past on You play your cards, had to stay strong
But it ain't that hard to sing a sad song We all got stars and broken parts but most of the marks stay close to my heart Waiting for the downpore to start the rainclouds over my head got dark
And then I saw my angel cut through the storm
She was in a firefighter uniform
I closed my eyes so I can see some more
But the first time ever I remember beeing born
