Only you can hear my soul
Only you can hear my soul

Moon
How many songs have resounded
Desires which, through the centuries
Have rent the heavens to reach you
Harbours for poets who do not write
And so oft lose their minds
You hear the sighs of the yearning
And let everyone dream
Moon, look at me, listen to me

Only you can hear my soul

Moon
You know the secret of eternity
And the vulnerable truth
Relieve my heart
This heart of mine that knows nothing, nothing
Love can ease the pain
Like a fire consuming your soul

Moon
You light up the heavens in all its immensity
We only see the side you wish to show
Such is our want
Porcelain angels that don't fly
Paper souls that burn
Hearts falling like leaves
Dreams going up in smoke
Children of the earth and of yourself, you who knows

That love can ease the pain
Like a fire that burns the soul
But love is the driving force in our hearts
The power that moves and illuminates everything

Only you can hear my soul
The dawning light, my goddess, my oh so silent
goddess
Only you can hear my soul

The dawning light, my goddess, my oh so silent
goddess
