walking on a daydream
in wonderland
slide down a slipstream, I do what I can maybe some day you'll give me your hand waiting for the night time the days are so long (the days are so long) feeding my lifeline I've to got be strong lie here beside me this is where you belong but I want you to know something about me it's easy if you try (easy if you try) the secret that I keep when I'm in too deep gotta stop spinning that lie cry too much and too young (too young) forget what I said its already begun (begun) forget what I did its already been done
forget what I said
forget what I said
waiting at the turnstile which way should I turn waiting for the silence it helps me to learn nothing I can do now but pray you'll return chasing a memory maybe I should give in (I should give in) drowning in a thought we should not lose but win never wanna be free where did this all begin

but I want you to know something about me

the secret that I keep when I'm in too deep gotta give up spinning that lie

forget what I said

forget what I said

I believe that (I believe that) care but you won't show (you won't show) and I know that you're too proud to let me know cry too much and too young forget what I said its already begun

forget what I said

forget what I said

forget what I said

forget what I said

forget what I said

forget what I said

(fading)

forget what I said
