In the burrow, as I lay, I can feel myself decay
And the vultures, they can stay
But now there's no more room to save

In the burrow, as I lay, I can feel my heart's to blame
Yet I continue just the same
I can try to run, try to pull your eyes away

In the burrow, as I lay, I am me, I am the same
But I must return to your ways
To the light beyond my state

In the burrow, as I lay, be my hope beyond my wait
You must return as you came
You must tear my skies away
