Stop doing that. Can't you see there is no turning back?
Take it in stride cause tonight I'm running out of time.
I'm running out of time. Sometimes I feel like crying and sometimes I feel like screaming. There are two sides to everything. I could see this coming. There is nothing left for us to go on. There are two sides to everything, every argument that you have meant to bring. There's two sides. There are two sides to everything, every argument that you have meant to bring. There's two sides. What you say to me goes right through me like a knife and I can't take anymore, anymore of it this time. This is not like what I thought.
Was this really all my fault? I don't need you to tell me I'm wrong. There are two sides to everything, every argument that you have meant to bring. There's two sides. There are two sides to everything, every argument that you have meant to bring. There's two sides to you and me. There are two sides. There are sides. There are two sides!
