Patience takes more than you,
Because all our words are meaningless without action
All we need is a just a little more
To prove that not every person's fully gone

You rise and I fall
It's the way we stand that makes us feel so small,

We know that all hope is not lost,
Just hidden somewhere that not everyone can trust
If you looked a little harder, if you stayed a little longer
then
We could see the tide that come to sweep away every soul

Patience wants more than you Because we all have the same red blood that courses through our veins
And all they ask, is for a little more
To keep there eyes from shutting to the world

You rise and I fall
It's the way we stand that makes us feel so small,

We know that all hope is not lost,
Just hidden somewhere that not everyone can trust
If you looked a little harder, if you stayed a little longer
then
We could see the tide that come to sweep away every
soul
