Oh I can't believe, I can't believe
That you'd honestly pick me to call me your baby.
And if it isn't real, isn't real,
Then how do you explain all these things I feel...
For you.
And how all the little things you do make me.
And never could I describe how much you mean to me.

What if I could kiss the stars,
What if I could learn to love,
What if all these wishes made were to come true one day.
What if I just skipped a year,
Learned to drive right out of here,
Let go of everything and finally let my heart steer.
I'm holding onto the nothing that seems to hold onto
me,
But it's not right or wrong,
It's all about what you believe,
And I believe I love you.

Late at night when the whole town is dark,
I stare into the sky wondering where you are.
Faces pass me as I'm walking by,
Reminding me that you're not here so I sit here and cry...
For you,
And how I am torn from the absolute truth.
But it's not a question for why I love you.
What if I could kiss the stars,
What if I could learn to love,
What if all these wishes made were to come true one day.
What if I just skipped a year,
Learned to drive right out of here,
Let go of everything and finally let my heart steer.
I'm holding onto the nothing that seems to hold onto
me,
But it's not right or wrong,
It's all about what you believe,
And I believe I love you.
I believe I love you.

What if I just kissed the stars,
What if I have learned to love,
What if all these wishes made suddenly came today.
What if I just kissed the stars,
What if I have learned to love,
What if all these wishes made suddenly came today.

Oh I can't believe
That you'd honestly pick me.
