As I walk the street signs remind me of your name
A passing glance and everything goes back to the way it felt on the day
When we were both inspired
Not ashamed and living a lie
A cold wind started blowing
Every time I dropped your name
Just know that the weather's changing
A brand new day I need to break away

I need to break apart from your hold on me
Follow your heart is what you've always taught me
Just look inside you'll know it's right
I'm either the man I'm supposed to be
Or you must really love me

I want you to understand that I'll be just fine without you
It's not an easy thing to go through
And now I'm terrified I have to Take a risk and do this by myself
Stop looking at the world through the eyes of someone else
And without regret or fear
I look up to the open sky
I realize what we need
It's time to make up your mind
And figure out where we go from here
We need a fresh start and a clean slate
I can't guarantee that we'll do this together
A brand new day I need to break away

I need to break apart from your hold on me
Follow your heart is what you've always taught me
Just look inside you'll know it's right
I'm either the man I'm supposed to be
Or you must really love me

Today we've made a decision, we need some revision
To try to figure out where we go from here
I think it's time for a change in atmosphere

I need to break apart from your hold on me
Follow your heart is what you've always taught me
Just look inside you'll know it's right
I'm either the man I'm supposed to be
Or you must really love me
