Slowly we walk up to your front door
Your hands grip mine so tightly
It feels like I had everything I wanted
But in this room there's no one by my side

I waited too long to make this worth it
How can you blame me for this feeling I had for so long
I know it's hard to handle but it's all my fault
I waited too damn long
Another night in this empty room
I know you feel it too

Slowly we walk up to your front door (my feet drag with every step)
Your hands grip mine so tightly (I think I'm suffocating)
It feels like I had everything I wanted
(Turns out it was more than I bargained for)
But in this room there's no one by my side

I waited too long to make this worth it
How can you blame me for this feeling I had for so long
I know it's hard to handle but it's all my fault
I waited too damn long
Another night in this empty room
I know you feel it too

This room is just four empty walls without you by my side
I know my clumsy words can't help. Can't say I didn't try

I never wanna know how far we had to go
I waited for too long to tell you what is right
I left you there that night
I waited for too long

I waited too long to make this worth it
How can you blame me for this feeling I had for so long
I know it's hard to handle but it's all my fault
I waited too damn long
Another night in this empty room
I know you feel it too
