V.1

Don't sit behind that veil of smoke pretending not to see

The walk is slow, the smile is gone,

But it's still the same old me

The man who drank his final glass and left you long ago

Has loved and lost, and now crawls back

Where all good losers go

Ch.

Yes I'm back, and lonelier than ever

I know I said the world would end

Before I crossed that line

But I'm back, where lonely fools all gather

And it looks like I'll be here a long, long time

V.2

Those swingin' doors, they work both ways

And men escape outside

But all the while their strength returns

Their weakness only hides

To fight the thirst, resist the wine

I never was that strong

Just one goodbye, and down I fell

Back here where I belong
