I've often wondered about things that most kids say they know does everybody fall in love some day? And is it falling? or growing? Im skeptical you know? Most kids they say they're in love today well I guess you're falling, falling in something, falling in something not love. well when I meet love, im not going to be falling I don't wanna fall so you fall right on your face, that can't be love because love is growing falling is losing everything and now your ignoring me your lust keeps claiming "he is love" I could be wrong just maybe but it looks like your falling too fast well I guess you're falling, falling in something, falling in something not love. well when I meet love, im not going to be falling I don't wanna fall
