I am Yours, and You are mine

Won't you say once more
I love You in the Bread and in the Wine
Till the whole world knows our love song
I am Yours, and You are mine

On the street, it's hard to find
In the city, peace of mind
Ain't knockin' on nobody's door
And even the countryside can't hide it anymore

People movin' in every direction
Can't take a moment to be kind
The lack of understanding
The pace is too demanding
You could easily lose your mind

And He's saying to you
Won't you say once more
I love You in the Bread and in the Wine
Till the whole world knows our love song
I am Yours, and You are mine

Standing under neon lights
And lying down to troubled nights
Avoiding the most painful sights
There's no way to deny it

No matter if you're young or old
No matter if your story's told
Or if nobody knows your name
To Him it's all the same

He sold Himself to buy a light
And He wants to make it right
He sold Himself to buy a light
And He wants to make it right

And He's saying to you
Won't you say once more
I love You in the Bread and in the Wine

Till the whole world knows our love song
I am Yours, and You are mine

Won't you say once more
I love You in the Bread and in the Wine
Till the whole world knows our love song
I am Yours, and You are mine
