I couldn't resist him
His eyes were like yours
His hair was exactly the shade of brown
He's just not as tall, but I couldn't tell
It was dark and I was lying down

You are everything – he means nothing to me
I can't even remember his name
Why you so upset?
Baby, you weren't there and I was thinking of you when I came

What do you expect?
You left me here alone
I drank so much
I needed to touch

Don't over react
I pretended he was you

You wouldn't me, To be Lonley?

How do I put it so you understand?
I didn't let him hold my hand

But he looked like you
I guess he looked like you
No, he wasn't you

But
You can still trust me
This ain't infidelity
It's not cheating
When you were on my mind

Yes he looked like you
But I heard love was blind
