"When You Leave"

I would write your name on the walls,
If it proved a point about anything,
Anything at all, About My Love for you,
I would kiss you deeper than the ocean,
If it would make your heart beat faster,
I would make a song with your name in,
But I doubt you would hear it with truth in sight,

When You Leave, My sky turns grey,
When you say goodbye, I block out the sound,
When I sigh and you hold me, I smile like a child,
I wish I could tell you everything you mean,
But when I count the steps your taking,
My heart keeps on breaking while you never look back,

If songs had more meanings than words,
I would sing you a love song everyday of your life,
If Roses were not killed as a sign of affection,
I would spend my time picking them for you,

If I could no longer recognise your smile,
I would throw myself off the closest tower,

When You Leave, My sky turns grey,
When you say goodbye, I block out the sound,
When I sigh and you hold me, I smile like a child,
I wish I could tell you everything you mean,
But when I count the steps your taking,
My heart keeps on breaking while you never look back,

All I ever want is for you to feel,
Loved and admired before you walk away,
All I ever wanted was to kiss you,
And feel the same emotions as I give out to you,
And if I could,
I would tear out my heart, and make a silver chain,
And allow you to take my heart with you, wherever you go,

When you leave, My sky turns grey.
