True colours show through the thickest skin we wear a mask, hide in the shadows our identities are misconceptions i found an open book with all it's words erased i wrote mine in pen but its been dropped in the water the ink has bled and it's never really dried i've skinned my knees and hidden the scars everyone wishes for more than they have you can't pawn your life for a tired dream behind eyes is a heart of gold but it's worth nothing at all if you don't let it show
