You can leave your heart at the side of the road follow the scent of desperation have you heard? virtue sold out heartbreak comes and goes like the seasons and integrity washed out with the tide my proverbs are dime a dozen but i think i make my point for love's sake just save your heart everyone can find true love it's situated below the ground thousands of miles away your feet will bleed before it's found everyday compassionate masquerades for those who say they have the answer take cover and find an honest lover buying into everyone's fake love it's all we've ever known
