(Verse 1)

You're half a world away in another hemisphere.
It's not the same, but still you play and I can hear you loud and clear.
I was hoping that you'd stay in my own fantasy.
With the truth I pushed away to make room for what I believe.
It was you that got me through.

(Chorus)

When I can't be sure, what it is this life means?
What the pain is for, why we're always fighting?
You've had enough that you could be so mad.
And everything can make me so sad.
And I can't be sure of anything anymore.

(Verse 2)

Was all this time a waste, as I look at what's left here.
It's a nothingness that I face; all I've held here has disappeared.
You've risked a lot on faith, given mostly everything.
And I'm reminded that you stayed to hold me when I couldn't hang.
If where we've been couldn't get us through.

(Chorus)

When I can't be sure, what it is this life means?
What the pain is for, why we're always fighting?
You've had enough that you could be so mad.
And everything can make me so sad.
And I can't be sure of anything anymore.

(Guitar Solo)

(Bridge)

Then every dream came true.
Every dream I dreamed for you.

(Chorus)

When I can't be sure, what it is this life means?
What the pain is for, why we're always fighting?
But I've had enough to make me so mad.

And still everything can seem so sad.
And I can't be sure of anything anymore.

(Chorus)

When I can't be sure, what it is this life means?
What the pain is for, why we're always fighting?
When you've had enough to make all this go bad.
Why am I still so sad?
I can't be sure of anything anymore.
