Thirty thousand auto workers have gone to work to find That they've been downsized from the assembly to the unemployment line
The employed seeking job security content with what employers give Thinning out the job market keeps the workers competitive
The upper one percent receive the tax breaks, social program cuts commence Educational funds take a back seat to America's defense
These education cuts are an investment in the prison industry
An occupational restructuring towards a slave labor economy
The chance of survival on death row disappears, their right to appeal is deprived Worker strength and solidarity depletes with union officials bribed Raising taxes to build sports stadiums while the homeless are ignored Refusing to supply the health care benefits most people can't afford The newly founded citizen review boards' members are all police
The gap widens between the cost of living and the inflation increase Those in power own the media machine it's the vehicle to their views
They bury all of their corruption under fluff reported news
They bombard us with statistics to influence public opinion
The more ridiculous the lie the more people seem to listen It's the people with no money that are responsible for the rest of us being poor We'll just eliminate the welfare system to even up the score
Our conditions never improve no matter how many programs we stop
The money always seems to circulate back to the people at the top

The occasional whining criticisms keep the public satisfied
The rest are busy escaping reality with drugs the CIA supplied It's always the most oppressed who easily fall victim to ignorance
Even with all that they've been through they still pledge allegiance
To their country and flag that has caused all of their grievous pain Patriotism leads to nationalism which in turn proceeds to fascism
Poor and working class people are the tools of sick corporate perseverance Shit on little puppets exploited in the trials of human dominance
But still the pride goes on blindly and in so-called freedom they gloat Waving the flag but cursing the politicians they think they elect when they vote Behind the trails of our peacekeepers lie the dying and the dead
There are millions of starving children that are waiting to be fed Because executive orders demand that economic sanctions are applied If they'd have bowed down to our pressure, relief may have just arrived
As the world's only super power we rule without regret We don't let these children survive and grow up to be a threat Love of this country is based on nothing but the fear of living somewhere worse And gratitude shouldn't be the reaction to someone else being slaughtered first
