Last time when I was standing here
It was Summer 1991
I had flowers in my long blond hair
And two sparks dancing in my eyes
I was crazy about this gorgeous boy
He looked like James Dean on his motorbike
We thought that love was just holding hands
And watching the Moon at night

Then the Autumn came
And all the colours changed
What I'd seen in him
I couldn't see again

Cause everything flows
And nothing stands still
Everything flows
And always will

Last time I was walking down this street
I felt the burning rage against this world
I had stones in my pockets, I was ready to fight
In the name of broken souls
I didn't eat meat, I fed homeless cats
I was deeply in touch with The Holy Ghost
I believed everything depended on me
When I sang my protest songs

The day I realized
I couldn't save the Earth
I went to the nearest bar
And had a big fat steak
Cause everything flows
And nothing stands still
Everything flows
And always will

Today I just smile when I look at my past
By now I've learnt to take life as it comes
I have no expectations, I dream carefully
Under this starless city skies
I've lost my illusions along the way

And now I'm far too smart to trust my eyes
Cause what I see might not be real
I know my instincts can lie

I live from day to day
Grateful for what I've go
Happily reconciled
With the saddest fact

Cause everything flows
And nothing stands still
Everything flows

Oh! Time, time, time
You're the greatest thief
How come you always get away with things?
People blame people
For each change and every lose
When it's all your fault!

Cause everything flows
