

Anne Clark

"World Without Warning"

Visit "World Without Warning" on MotoLyrics.com

I live off nothing in this world
Except the thick grey air that chains itself
Swirls all around and engrains itself
Stifles my last hope into sullen despair
I don't associate myself
With all of the people I can do without
Those who never leave me in any doubt
That their selfish narrow lives are all they care about
I enjoy the silence in my life
I don't thrive on the chaos that those contacts can bring

So many empty gestures
That don't mean anything
It's so hard and so cold
The texture of this world
That nothing in this place is soft enough to hold
And nothing like tenderness can ever be unfurled
I don't want anything in this world
Except a thick grey air
That will keep my heart hoping
And keep my eyes open
Just in case there's something there

Visit Anne Clark page on MotoLyrics.com, to get more lyrics and videos.