Do you wanna know what love is?
Well, you can taste it in your heart
If you can swallow all your pride
And then you'll know what love is
It takes patience to find
And I know that I would recognize real love
I had time to taste it, now I find myself in doubt
I won't wait for you to make your sacrifice
See, I'm running out of patience
Whether you run to me or crawl, I don't believe in you
Because I need a disconnection, a disconnection You see, I need a disconnection, a disconnection from you
So you wanna know what love is
It's a smile to keep you warm
To feel we're together when we're alone
And then you'll know what love is
Oh, and if you listen, you'll hear it whisper in the wind
And I know that I would recognize real love

I had time to taste it, now I find myself in doubt
I won't wait for you to make your sacrifice
See, I'm running out of patience
Whether you run to me or crawl, I don't believe in you
Because I need a disconnection, a disconnection
You see, I need a disconnection, oh, a disconnection
from you
Running on the days gone by
There's no use in living a lie
All that I put into love, I know it's not in you Everywhere I turn to see
There's no place for you and me
But now I know that you and I were never meant to be
Because I need a disconnection, a disconnection
You see, I need a disconnection, oh, a disconnection
from you
From you
From you, you
Because I need a disconnection
So now you know what love is
