You're probably sick of being tired
You can't find the strength to close your eyes
You can't let go
But you can't change everything
Stop laying in this burning bed

Write it on the walls and read it
Bright red so you can see it
Don't fail me now
Write it on the walls and read it
Until there are no secrets
So safe and sound
At least for now

Time's gonna warn you with a whisper
What it wants to let you know
You can't live in fear of the things that aren't for sure
So stay alive by playing dead

Write it on the walls and read it
Bright red so you can see it
Don't fail me now
Write it on the walls and read it
Until there are no secrets
So safe and sound
Still there are lines for us to write before we close our eyes
And only time will tell the ending when the ink runs dry

Time will tell everything
It's ever so quiet counting down

(It's time, so much damn
I visualized her, the drops ran down
The was a small price to pay
And it made it real, it made it real
Because I wrote this down on this day
That this spilled on my hands...

The was a small price to pay
And it made it real, it made it real)

Write it on the walls and read it
Blood red so you can see it
Life leaking Out

Write it on the walls and read it
(Write it down)
Until there are no secrets
(Oh-oh-oh, no secrets)
So safe and sound

At least for now
At least for now
