I was drunk sober tarnished and pure
All I ever wanted was a little bit more
I had eyes that were heavy sickly and sore
Blacked out windows and a bolt on the door

I was shell shocked shaken from the world outside
I had voices come and wake me in the dead of the night
At the end of the tunnel they says there's a light
I hope there's more to living than being alive

And the blind truth, it'll find you
In the end it's all that's waiting
Yeah the blind truth, it'll find you
In the end it's all that's waiting for you

I was judge jury, witness and one
I put myself on trial for the things I had done
Folks are staring looking at what I've become Cold and unforgiving like the face of a gun

Went underneath my skin felt my blood so warm
Waking up my senses like the day I was born
I was the sickness I was the cure
I never thought I would feel so safe and secure

And the blind truth, it'll find you
In the end it's all that's waiting
Yeah the blind truth, it'll find you
In the end it's all that's waiting for you

Is the outside just your reflection?
No, it's a whispering that you hear
When you're alone, it's all I know

Without the blood beneath my skin
It was so warm, it was just like
The very first day I was born

And the blind truth it'll find you
In the end it's all that's waiting
Yeah the blind truth, it'll find you

In the end it's all that's waiting
Always watching always wishing
In the end it's all that's waiting for you
